

Animal Testing Statement

Bramble Berry products are not tested on animals and is cruelty free.

Bramble Berry is dedicated to socially and environmentally responsible business practices, and we do our best to live up to this. You can find out more about Bramble Berry's dedication to environmentally sound business methods on our Social Responsibility page.

Fragrance oils are a combination of natural and synthetic ingredients. At one point or another in the last hundred years, every single one of those ingredients has been tested on animals for safety. However, Bramble Berry does not currently use animal testing on any of our products and the current iteration of our fragrance oils have not been tested on animals.